

Sheetz Does Not Live up to the Hype

Sheetz Isn't As Good As It Seems

Written, Designed, & Photographed by Amy Westfall and Daniela Pepchuk

Fall of 2022 was the grand opening of Sheetz, in Powell, Ohio. Many people were skeptical about the new restaurant opening, but it soon became a popular spot for many teens to hang out and get food. But is Sheetz really worth all of the hype it is getting? To figure this out, we decided to take a trip to Sheetz and find out for ourselves.

We bought four items at Sheetz. A blue raspberry slushie, french fries, chicken tenders, and mozzarella sticks. The first thing we bought was a blue raspberry slushie. The cost of the slushie added up to be $3.44. To us, this price wasn't too unreasonable since we purchased one of the medium sizes. However, you can definitely find a slushie for a more manageable price at other places. With all honesty, the slushie was very sweet and rich in flavor, which some people may like, but it was a bit much for us.

French fries are one of the most common orders placed at Sheetz. You can get a variety of different sizes either in a small paper bag or a plastic cup. We got the medium size in a cup. Unfortunately, the fries were a bit pricey compared to other places, costing $3.39. After tasting the fries, we concluded that they tasted very flavorful, considering that they weren't soft and thick fries.

Unfortunately, the chicken tenders were the most expensive item that we ordered and our least favorite as well. The cost added up to $7.79 which was costly for chicken tenders. The chicken tenders were dipped in buffalo sauce, which made them taste different when we tried them. They did not live up to the average chicken tender taste.

New appetizers have also recently come to Sheetz including their mozzarella sticks. You can buy mozzarella sticks in different quantities and can choose what sauce you want when ordering. This appetizer cost us $4.39,

Chicken Tenders dipped in buffalo sauce which we would agree to be an expensive price for 5 mozzarella sticks. Fortunately, the sticks were worth the cost. They were very rich in their cheese flavor, and had a nice crunchy flavor that topped the appetizer. Overall, this was probably our favorite thing that we ordered from the Sheetz menu.

Sheetz was good but costly overall. There are definitely better fast-food locations out there that are better than Sheetz and include logical prices. Sheetz does not live up to the hype that some people believe it does.

Blue Raspberry Slushie

French Fries

Mozzarella Sticks