It is not hard to find good ice cream in Powell Ohio. There are plenty of options to choose from but my top two are Mcdonalds McFlurrys and Dairy Queen Blizzards. When comparing these two I to focus on three things: how well they are mixed, if the ratio to ice cream and candy pieces are good and how appetizing it looks. Starting off with Mcdonald's, their mcflurrys have a good vanilla base that is rich and creamy. They have lots of options including oreo, m&ms and their newly released one cookie dough confetti. It is very rare for mcdonald's to come up with new flavors so this item is very popular. Mcflurrys are affordable and perfect for anytime of the day.

"I was so excited to try the cookie dough confetti flavor and it did not disappoint," says freshman Hannah Wasch

Next up is a fan favorite Dairy Queen Blizzards. Dairy queen has a very wide selection of flavors, more than McDonald's. Although Mcdonald's are good there are a limited amount of flavor options when in comparison to Dairy Queen that has many great flavors that are equivalent or better than Mcdonald's.

"In my opinion dairy queen blizzards are much better than Mcdonald's Mcflurries and have many different options which is always a plus," says freshman Avery Hilvert.

When going back to comparing a Dairy Queen and McDonald's McFlurry, I personally think that the Dairy Queen is better in the sort that there are more cookie dough pieces and is better mixed. When reaching the bottom of a McDonald's Blizzard it was more of just ice cream than cookie dough pieces and ice cream.

This is the blizzard from Dairy Queen. it is the new cookie dough flavor with a chocolate base. The blizzard looks appealing and it was soft and creamy.
